100 YEARS OF THE HILLBRUSH COMPANY

Perfect edges that stay perfect, maintenance

with no

Hillbrush is proud to be celebrating its centenary year, reflecting on a rich heritage and bright future as the company diversifies with the times

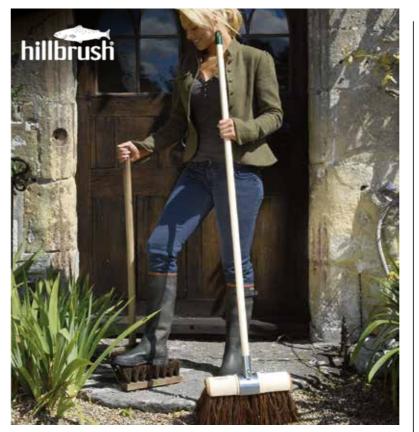

Hillbrush was founded in 1922 by brothers Fred and Bill Coward and is still family owned and run from the small rural town of Mere in Wiltshire. The company originally manufactured brushes for the dairy and agricultural industries and, in 1952, the Queen visited Hillbrush during a trip to the local area. In 1981, Hillbrush was granted a Royal Warrant to supply traditional brushes to the royal households and retains the Warrant to this day.

In the 1980s, the business diversified and, through innovation and product development, it successfully introduced a range of plastic-backed brushes for use in the food and beverage industries. In 2016, Hillbrush moved site, still in Mere, to a new, purpose-built and state-of-the-art facility enabling it to manufacture the broad range of brushes now on offer. The new site also houses 'Visit Hillbrush', a visitor centre combining a boutique gift shop, restaurant serving delicious homemade dishes and a fascinating brush museum. Located just off the A303, it's the perfect stop over for travellers visiting the South West of England.

Today, Hillbrush manufactures more than 3,000 products as well as producing traditional brushware. It's the only UK manufacturer of hygienic colour-coded cleaning equipment and brushes for food manufacturing environments, selling to a global customer base. Products from Hillbrush Hygiene Solutions are designed to the highest standards to address the main concerns of the food industry

- brush filament loss, bacteria contamination and foreign object contamination. Hillbrush also provides a bespoke product service, covering design, prototype development, manufacture and distribution. The company's modern injection moulding facility consists of 10 of the latest injection moulding machines, meaning there's almost nothing it can't make. Today's technology is a far cry from the humble beginnings of Fred and Bill, and the company is proud to celebrate a century of British manufacturing at its best. • Norwood Park, Mere, Wiltshire BA12 6FE

UPGRADE YOUR KITCHEN WITH SGS DESIGN

Pantry perfection: practically perfect pantry designs that combine style and beauty with well-planned storage The pantry, or larder, has seen a dramatic revival in recent years and these small rooms have become a popular design feature when SGS Design plans any kitchen. Demand for this additional storage is directly related to embracing open-plan living; kitchens now combine cooking with living and entertaining. When designing the space, the company's first consideration is whether the room is defined as a 'pantry', to provide ancillary dry storage to the kitchen or, a 'larder', which is a cool room where food can be prepared and stored. Material selection is impacted by this decision; marble and stone are often used for cold-contact surfaces and, of course, plenty of open shelving. These practical spaces can be a fantastic opportunity to be playful with design. Nothing smells better than a well-stocked larder — opening the door should excite your senses and start the creative culinary juices flowing.
